 Under the Volcano

The smoke has cleared, the dust has settled, the eagle has landed, the phoenix has risen, the chickens have come home to roost, the eggs have been laid, the grapes have been stomped, the peaches have been preserved, the mason jars have been capped, the snow has melted, the refrigerator has been defrosted, the cream has risen to the top, the men have been separated from the boys, the babies have been weaned, the milk has gone sour, the cows have come home, the cats have been neutered and spayed, the wounds have healed, the boils have been lanced, the wicked witch is dead, the fat lady has sung, and our fundraising marathon has ended.

In ten days we received over 4600 listener pledges for over $170,000. That's $10,000 over the goal we set to meet our annual budget plus covering the expenses of building our new studios. Unfortunately, $6000 of that extra 10 grand was spent this weekend when our transmitter blew while our engineer was on vacation. But we were back on air in just 24 hours, and oh yeah, we're extremely grateful to the record companies that donated prizes, as well as our swell listeners.
