1 dead as vengeful elephants stampede

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — A herd of elephants went on a rampage in a northern village, trampling a man to death, smashing crops and forcing 200 people to flee their homes, a newspaper reported yesterday.

Panggung village chief M. Nafi said the herd was believed to have come to the village for revenge after seeing four elephant carcasses at the rim of the forest, the daily Jakarta Post reported. The carcasses were of elephants killed by poachers for their ivory, it said.

The newspaper said a 25-year-old villager was killed during the rampage over the weekend at the village in the regency of Krueng Aceh, about 1,000 miles northwest of Jakarta.

Nothing new to report on our FCC battle, but National Public Radio recently ran an interesting story about it. If you'd like a tape copy, just ask.
